- Live bait: Live bait is the most effective way to catch fish, but it can also be the most expensive and difficult to obtain. Live bait can include worms, minnows, crayfish, and frogs.
- Artificial bait: Artificial bait is less effective than live bait, but it is also less expensive and easier to obtain. Artificial bait can include lures, flies, and spinners.

Lures

Lures are artificial baits that are designed to imitate the movement and appearance of live bait. Lures can be made from a variety of materials, including plastic, metal, and wood. There are a wide variety of lures available, each with its own unique design and action. Some of the most popular lures include:

- Spinnerbaits: Spinnerbaits are a type of lure that consists of a weighted head with a spinning blade attached. Spinnerbaits are effective for catching a variety of fish species, including bass, walleye, and pike.
- Crankbaits: Crankbaits are a type of lure that dives and wobbles when retrieved. Crankbaits are effective for catching a variety of fish species, including bass, walleye, and catfish.
- Jerkbait: Jerkbait is a type of lure that is retrieved with a jerking motion. Jerkbait is effective for catching a variety of fish species, including bass, walleye, and muskie.

Flies

Flies are artificial baits that are designed to imitate the appearance and movement of insects. Flies are typically made from fur, feathers, and thread. There are a wide variety of flies available, each with its own unique design and purpose. Some of the most popular flies include:

- Dry flies: Dry flies are designed to float on the surface of the water. Dry flies are effective for catching a variety of fish species, including trout, bass, and bluegill.
- Wet flies: Wet flies are designed to sink below the surface of the water. Wet flies are effective for catching a variety of fish species, including trout, salmon, and steelhead.
- Streamers: Streamers are a type of fly that is designed to imitate the movement of a baitfish. Streamers are effective for catching a variety of fish species, including trout, bass, and pike.

Tackle

Tackle is the equipment that is used to catch fish. Tackle includes rods, reels, lines, hooks, and leaders. The type of tackle that you use will depend on the type of fish you are trying to catch and the fishing conditions.

- Rods: Rods are used to cast and retrieve your bait or lure. There are a wide variety of rods available, each with its own unique design and purpose. Some of the most popular rods include spinning rods, baitcasting rods, and fly rods.
- Reels: Reels are used to store and retrieve your fishing line. There are a wide variety of reels available, each with its own unique design and purpose. Some of the most popular reels include spinning reels, baitcasting reels, and fly reels.

- Lines: Lines are used to connect your rod and reel to your bait or lure. There are a wide variety of lines available, each with its own unique design and purpose. Some of the most popular lines include monofilament line, fluorocarbon line, and braided line.
- Hooks: Hooks are used to attach your bait or lure to your line. There are a wide variety of hooks available, each with its own unique design and purpose. Some of the most popular hooks include single hooks, treble hooks, and circle hooks.
- Leaders: Leaders are used to connect your line to your hook. Leaders are typically made from a strong material, such as fluorocarbon or wire. Leaders help to protect your line from being broken by fish.

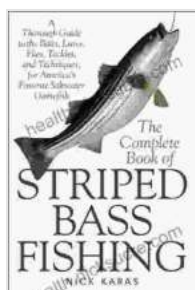

Techniques

There are a wide variety of fishing techniques that can be used to catch fish in America. Some of the most popular techniques include:

- Casting: Casting is a technique that is used to deliver your bait or lure to a specific location in the water. There are a variety of casting techniques that can be used, each with its own unique advantages and disadvantages.
- Trolling: Trolling is a technique that is used to drag your bait or lure behind a boat. Trolling is effective for catching a variety of fish species, including salmon, trout, and walleye.
- Jigging: Jigging is a technique that is used to move your bait or lure up and down in the water. Jigging is effective for catching a variety of fish species, including bass, walleye, and perch.

- Fly fishing: Fly fishing is a technique that is used to cast a fly rod and line. Fly fishing is effective for catching a variety of fish species, including trout, salmon, and steelhead.

This is just a brief overview of the baits, lures, flies, tackle, and techniques that are used for fishing in America. There is a wealth of information available on this topic, so be sure to do your research before you head out to the water.
